A Visit to Mr. Bryan
He's Well and Happy
He'll Be a Delegate
His Castor Oil Story

Current Events
—By Arthur Brisbane.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 21.—Montesquieu says in his "Spirit of Laws," second chapter of book 25: "Men who are knaves by retail are extremely honest in the gross; they love morality."
That's so; and people are very much excited just now about financial and corporation morality in connection with oil wells. Here and there, among the indignant ones, a few might consent to take "one hundred thousand dollars cash," if it were offered. A few others, perhaps, would accept a good stock market oil tip if they thought it safe to "play" it.
But they dislike such things as others very, very much.

THE oil scandal wends its weary way, to end nobody knows where today. Instead of looking into the oil Teapot Dome scandal, you are invited to look into William Jennings Bryan's comfortable Florida home on the edge of the water, just south of Miami.

MR. BRYAN never descends to white flannel trousers, buckskin shoes, or anything fancy. You see him just as he was in Nebraska, in Chicago, in St. Louis and in Washington.
His hair is about as long as usual, a little thinner. The tails of his dark cutaway coat are long, his collar is turned down, his neck tie is black. Just as he is, he could walk on a convention platform, cut the ground from under some aspiring candidate, and everybody would say: "It's the same old Bryan."

"THIS place of mine is the most beautiful spot in Florida, and therefore the most beautiful spot in the world," says Mr. Bryan. Happy the man, content with his lot, who never goes sighing for what he has not. His Florida home is a beautiful place, an old-fashioned house that Bryan built, old-fashioned furniture that Mrs. Bryan brought from Nebraska, and old-fashioned atmosphere.
To W. R. Hearst and his other visitor Mr. Bryan gives one large cocoon, much bigger than his head, one grapefruit almost as big as his head, both from his own trees. He has seven kinds of fruit on the place, including oranges and lemons, also alligator pears and guava.

IT is an ideal place. Great palm trees in front of the house, planted by Mr. Bryan and already reaching above the roof—beautiful blue water at the back of the house, flowers, sunshine and peace.

BUT, there's a cry in the heart though the lip may be gay, and inside of Mr. Bryan's heart politics is boiling and raging like the lava inside Vesuvius.

IT WILL boil over undoubtedly at the Democratic convention in New York. The intelligent, hospitable State of Florida will surely not fail to send Mr. Bryan as a delegate. Florida on three occasions voted overwhelmingly for Bryan for President.
Florida thought him good enough for a $75,000 a year job in the White House. She surely won't neglect the opportunity to include him among her delegates at the convention.

To do so would be an injustice. Continued on Page 9, Column 3.

Tragedy in Arkansas Said to Have Been Caused by Jealousy

Clide Stackpole, thirty-five-year-old Lynn inventor and World War veteran, was shot to death by a woman in Devil's Bluff, Arkansas, dispatches to day revealed.
His wife and six-year-old son, 24 No. 104 Chestnut street, Lynn, Mass. Stackpole was shocked when informed a woman had killed her husband. She had not seen her husband's name in any affair with another woman.
Through the Lynn American Legion post, Mrs. Stackpole is making arrangements for the return of her husband's body. She also said she will make every effort to have the guilty party punished for her husband's death.
Mrs. Frank Nowell of Elms Rock, Ark., with whom Stackpole had told the police, who believed jealousy was the reason for the shooting. She said Stackpole intended leaving for Lynn this week to rejoin his wife and son.
He had been working for a railroad in Arkansas.
Stackpole was in Europe during months with the Twenty-second Engineers. After the war he worked in an oil-bearing kitchen range. At one time he was an instructor at the Boys' Club in Lynn. He was a member of the American Legion, post No. 4, of Lynn.
First news of Stackpole's death was received yesterday by wire and said the Lynn man had been strangled by a train. Chief of Police Thomas Barker of Lynn was informed of the murder today.

PAINTING FOUND HAYES SMEARED GUILTY IN BY INK SHOOTING

Sargent Picture That Aroused Protests of Jews Is Injured by Vandals

The controversy over the John Singer Sargent painting, "The Synagogue," took on a new aspect today when it was learned that some one had thrown the contents of a bottle of ink at the painting, which is still hung in the Public Library.
Most of the ink hit the wall and the frame of the picture, although some splashed the canvas itself. Experts have been called to examine the painting and determine what can be done to minimize the damage.
Officials at the library say the act was done either late at night or early in the morning. No one was found who witnessed the act of vandalism.
Deposition of the picture has not yet been determined on. It was ordered by the Legislature to be removed after Jewish organizations objected to it remaining in the library. By virtue of this order the picture was to have been turned over to the Department of Education.
The latter organization, however, refused the gift, saying that if the picture was objectionable to any one class of people it had no business in an educational institution.
SENATOR GREENE IS "HOLDING HIS OWN"
Washington, Feb. 21.—The condition of Senator Greene of Vermont remained "very critical" today, but he appeared to be holding his own, and attempts said the "prognosis is unfavorable but not hopeless."
The senator, wounded Friday during an encounter between a prohibition enforcement party and suspected bootleggers, was said by Dr. Thomas Livitt, one of his physicians, to have shown a "little improvement" during the last twenty-four hours, but he was still "desperately ill."
CARTER FIGHTS TO CONTROL TUTT'S TOMB
Carter, Pa., Feb. 21.—Edward Carter went into court today seeking a writ to prohibit the Egyptian government from breaking open the tomb of Tutankhamen, fix a term, and requested an order permitting Carter to resume his exploration of the tomb.
M. Laras, director of antiquities in the Egyptian government, has not yet gone to Luxor, but has in fact ordered for the tomb to be reopened.

CHIEF HURT AT FIRE IN BACK BAY

Ten Firemen Felled by Gas Fumes Fighting $75,000 Blaze in Block

District Fire Chief Daniel Kelly of Engine No. 7 was slightly injured and half a score of firemen were overcome by gas in fighting a stubborn blaze today in the business block at the corner of Belvidere street and Massachusetts avenue, Back Bay. The loss in the fire was $75,000.
A gas meter, torn from its fixture, released volumes of illuminating gas which overcame the firemen and added to the danger of the fire.
The fire was confined to a one-story, triangular business block housing five concerns. Acting Fire Chief Daniel Bennett, who personally supervised the fire, was slightly injured.

Many Others Involved; Records Show They Used Numbers to Conceal Names

Washington, Feb. 21 (A.P.).—A report that Attorney General Daugherty has bought and sold Sinclair oil stock is under investigation by the Senate Oil Committee.
Such a report was submitted by a special investigator and was laid before the committee in executive session. A check-up of brokers' books to establish whether it is true is now in progress.
"Information came to me through a special investigator," said Senator Wheeler, "indicating that Mr. Daugherty had dealt in Sinclair oil stocks, and I understand that those stocks were laid before the president."
Senator Wheeler is author of the resolution proposing an investigation of Daugherty's administration.
It can now be disclosed that the information formed the subject matter of last Sunday's conference between Chairman Lenroot and Senators Wheeler and Walsh and Atlas Spencer, special government counsel.
As an outgrowth of these discussions, Republican Senators held a conference yesterday and Senator Lodge, party floor leader, and Senator Pepper, were delegated to inform Turn Over

JOINT-EASE For Stiff, Swollen Joints

Rheumatic or Otherwise

Says: "When Joint-Ease Gets in—Joint Agony Gets Out."

It was a high-class pharmacist who saw prescription after prescription fall to help hundreds of his customers to get rid of rheumatic swellings and stiff, inflamed joints.

And it was this same man who asserted that a remedy could and would be compounded that would make creaky, swollen, inflamed joints work with just as much smoothness as they ever did.

Now this prescription, rightly named Joint-Ease, after being tested successfully on many obstinate cases, is offered through progressive pharmacists to the millions of people who suffer from stiff joints that need limbering up.

Swollen, twinge, inflamed, stiff, pain-laden joints are usually caused by rheumatism, but whatever the cause Joint-Ease makes right in, through skin and flesh and gets right to and corrects the trouble at its source.

Remember Joint-Ease is for ailments of the joints, whether in ankle, knee, hip, elbow, shoulder, spine or finger, and when you rub it on, you may expect speedy and satisfying results.

It is on sale at drugists everywhere for 50 cents a tube.

JOHNSON AFTER 39 VOTES OF BAY STATE

Amherst Grads in Drive for Delegates From Coolidge's Home Town

Senator Hiram W. Johnson's campaign managers at a meeting in New York decided to wage an aggressive contest for the thirty-nine delegates from Massachusetts, Coolidge's home State.

They determined more specifically to do their utmost to elect Johnson delegates from Northampton, the President's residence district.

It was stated at Johnson's eastern headquarters that students and graduates of Amherst, the President's alma mater, are organizing to promote Johnson's candidacy.

They may pick Amherst men as their candidates for delegates from the Northampton district.

Meanwhile, Harvard students are hard at work for Johnson in Boston, Cambridge and other Bay State districts.

They are in good a big Johnson rally the coming week at Cambridge.

International News Reel Men Film Vesuvius Lava

Rome, Feb. 21 (Universal Cable).—It has just been disclosed that the seaplane Marchi, Naples of the Italian Navy Air Service, piloted by Commander Capaldi, and carrying Umberto Romagnoli, International News Reel operator, has established a record for flying in the crater of Mount Vesuvius.

The seaplane remained in the crater for seven minutes, during which the movie camera was continually in operation. Romagnoli succeeded in photographing the roaring furnace of lava from a height of 150 feet.

When a woman wants a thing she wants it right now, somebody once said.

Miss Marietta Stuart, who resembles the married Queen of Scots in more than the spelling of her name, wanted a marriage license. She obtained the Assistant Registrar Joseph A. Calahan of her needs, but the registrar pointed toward the clock, which had just struck five.

"Sorry, but you're too late today. Anyway, you must file intention papers five days before I can give you a license."

But Miss Stuart hails from New York State, which is a fast town.

"Wait five days?" How ridiculous!

She got it—after a few hours.

Why, what a queer old-fashioned town you have, Mr. Registrar. But, really, you know, I must have the license now."

GIRL STRIKERS ARE URGED TO HOLD OUT

Ida Goldstein Advises Garment Workers to Wage Winning Fight

More than 1500 striking garment workers crowded into Finner Memorial Hall, South End, heard Miss Ida Goldstein of the International Union urge them to continue in their efforts until they had succeeded in having the employers grant their demands for a 44-hour working week.

William Collins, president of the Clear Makers' Union No. 47 said in part: "I feel safe in assuring you both of the financial and moral aid of our organization in your attempt to secure a forty hour week."

Vice-President Aaron Veltman of the same union also complimented the workers in their work. Frank McCarthy, representative of the American Federation of Labor, expressed their efforts and assured them their success in the present strike was of vital importance in every trade throughout the country.

Arthur Giovannetti, who is taking an active part in the strike, said: "The New York garment manufacturers cried that they would go into bankruptcy if the five day week was inaugurated. At present they are more prosperous than ever. There is no reason why we cannot work the same number of hours as the garment workers in that city."

WINTHROP ELKS HOLD BALL TONIGHT

There's going to be something doing out Winthrop way tonight, when the Elks try to decide on the most beautiful girl at their George Washington ball.

Doris Colbourne, selected by Rudolph Valentino as the most beautiful girl in Boston and Miss Mary Jenkins, selected as a winner in another beauty contest, are among the entrants, just to make the work of the judges difficult.

The Winthrop Elks have engaged the Mason-Dixon symphonists to furnish the music for the affair and just to show their appreciation, the winners of the beauty contest will be awarded an order on the White Beauty Studio and the order is worth just $10 to the lucky owner.

Mr. White, Percy Joyce and Charles J. Daley of the art staff of the Boston American will be among the judges who will be called upon to select the most beautiful girl at the affair.

Charles Taylor is chairman of the committee in charge of the ball, while Albert Hayes will officiate as host director.

PET DOG WILL HAVE REAL FUNERAL

Floral Tributes and Little Coffin for "Stray" Animal Loved in Portland

Portland, Me., Feb. 21.—He was only a stray dog, yet he was loved and cherished by all who knew him. Fourteen years ago, as a little pup, he was rescued from an old well by agents of the Animal Rescue League. The agents then looked for someone who would offer to take kindly care of the pup. Along came Frank E. Carmichael at Dorchester street and the little dog found a home.

Today Fido is dead and the Carmichael home is shrouded in gloom. Not only is the loss of the dog felt by the ones who cared for him but his loss has been felt by the neighborhood in mourning.

TO HAVE REAL FUNERAL. Meanwhile, preparations, nearly as elaborate as those accorded a human being, are being made for Fido's burial.

He was only a stray dog, yet he is going to have a real funeral. Today his body rests in a little pine coffin, especially made.

Floral tributes continue to pour in at the Carmichael home from the many friends who loved Fido.

And Mrs. Carmichael, whose constant companion the faithful dog was throughout the years, is preparing for a journey to Harrisburg, Pa., her old home town. The little coffin is going with her to the Pennsylvania city, there to be laid to rest.

There was only a stray dog, yet he was not neglected, his ribbon caused some have left the void in his circle of human acquaintances that Fido left in passing out.

DERAILMENT TIES UP BRAINTREE LINE. One train was delayed three minutes today and five others from seven to fourteen minutes when a workman's engine became derailed in the South Braintree yards. The accident is thought to have been caused by ice on the tracks.

PROTEST PLAN TO TRY LUDENDORFF

Berlin, Feb. 21. (A. P.)—The trial of General Ludendorff fixed for February 21st in Munich is called a "patriotic tragedy" in a protest published by the National Association of ex-officers which comes out strongly in Ludendorff's defense. The protest says: "To arrange the former leaders before a court of justice does not correspond at all with the dignity of the German people and even our enemy countries admit that Ludendorff was treated solely by patriotic motives. The whole world will realize and grieve at Germany because of this patriotic tragedy."

TIDE WASHES MAINE COTTAGES TO SEA

Race, Me., Feb. 21.—Two Summer cottages at Camp Ellis have been washed out to sea and four others are being broken up by high seas accompanying unusual tide caused by yesterday's storm. The camp is at the mouth and of Old Orchard Beach, now strewn with wreckage.

CRIS "TIRE" FIRE

"Sensational" Mrs. Flint says, "I'm twenty years old, and the hardest work I have had with him was to make him stop crying 'Tire! Tire! Fire!' More than once he has frightened an entire neighborhood with the cry. Now, I believe he would travel through the hot place with never a remark about conditions there."

The fire, in Mrs. Mary DeCotta's 17-room lodging house at No. 9 Ellis street, was marked by several notices by police and firemen. The blaze was discovered by Mrs. DeCotta, in the basement of the three-story wooden structure.

MANY FLEE FLAMES. Most of the roomers, recalling the conflagration last April in the Essex Hotel, almost immediately fled the way, in which seven lives were lost, ran to the street. Among others who required assistance were Mrs. Emily Jones, 60, a cripple; Mrs. Mary Tawer, who was fighting the blaze with a pail of water when the flames found her; and George T. Thayer, also a cripple, who was throwing his Sunday clothes into the snow from a front-room window.

While the monetary loss was not considerable the entire house was so damaged by fire, smoke and water, that it was necessary to be obliged to seek temporary quarters elsewhere.

'WIZARD' WOOD COMING HOME VIA EUROPE

Thought Philippine Governor's Son Is Returning to Explain Big Deals

Washington, Feb. 21. (Universal)—Lieutenant Osborne C. Wood, financial wizard, is believed to be touring the old world instead of coming direct to Washington to appear before congressional inquirers. It is learned.

The young man, who was military aide to his father, General Leonard O. C. Wood, Governor of the Philippines, obtained leave from his post to appear to visit the United States and explain his amazing operations in the Stock Market by which he is said to have made $750,000. He sailed on January 23 and should have reached the Pacific Coast by this time. Upon inquiry, it was indicated at the War Department that Lieutenant Wood had selected the longest way home and had taken passage on a steamer that would take him through the Suez Canal and enable him to visit London, Paris, Rome, Brussels and other capitals. No significance is attached to the delay. It was stated for the reason that, neither the Senate nor the House has yet authorized a committee of investigation, although resolutions have been introduced and are pending.

CONGRESSMAN IS NOW COLLEGE STUDENT

L. J. CONNELLY, W. P. CONNELLY, JR.

College "boys" have done many strange things in the past to work their way through school, but it remained for William P. Connelly, Jr., Congressman from Massachusetts (seated) and his brother, Lawrence C. (standing), to hit upon the clever idea of going to Congress and thus work their way through college. Mr. Connelly, a freshman at Georgetown University Law School, hopes he'll be re-elected so he can finish, and his brother, who serves as his secretary, who is also a law student, hopes that his big brother gets his wish.

to the State, for where Mr. Bryan sits at the Democratic convention is the head of the table. The passing years have not taken from him, or any of his power. With him in that convention, the attention of the nation would be concentrated on Florida, and on her delegate, W. J. Bryan, who, as everybody must admit, stands head and shoulders above every American as a fighter in a conventional battlefield.

MR. BRYAN said many things about politics that would interest certain gentlemen who harbor the foolish hope of being nominated. They will find a good description of themselves in the opening words of Dr. Johnson's "Rasselas." They won't learn here what Mr. Bryan said of politics for that was private. He is saving it for the convention.

CANDIDATES and others might profitably ponder Mr. Bryan's description of the two main classes in our Republic. That was not private. "Leaders of thought in this country," said Mr. Bryan, "are divided into Democrats and Aristocrats."

The Democrat believes that the right thing is to build up prosperity, comfort and happiness from the bottom of the social structure. The excessively prosperous few at the top will get their full part of the general prosperity.

THE DEMOCRAT believes that human society should be built up from the bottom on a strong foundation. The aristocrat believes that human society is suspended from the top.

He is sincerely convinced that the right government legislates to enrich the aristocracy suspended above the heads of the masses. "Take care of us first," the aristocrat says. "Four wealth and privilege upon us and you may safely trust us as to what we should allow to leak through to the common people below."

MANY MILLIONS voted for Bryan. Many other millions respect him as an absolutely honest and sincere man, although they may not agree with him politically, or on the subject of our money grandfathers.

It will please all to know that Mr. Bryan has the old fire in his eye. He can smell the battle afar off, at least twice as far as Joe's war horse could smell it. And he enjoys a fight as much as that war horse did.

Mr. Bryan speaks of himself as one "getting old," but that's preposterous. He is only sixty-four. That ought to be the beginning of really mental life. Every Sunday at Miami Mr. Bryan talks to a Bible class so big that the class has to meet in the public square. A man able to talk in the open air to five thousand and be heard by every one of them is not getting old.

MR. BRYAN says that corporations, in their dealings with corporation candidates,

JAP POLITICAL REBELS PLAN CRISIS DUE TO LOVE ROW

Jilted Farmer, to Vent Wrath, Wrecks Train That Led to Diet Dissolution

Tokio, Feb. 21. (AP)—How an obscure lover's jealousy precipitated a national political crisis was revealed today by a police statement regarding an attempt to wreck a train near Nagoya, January 31, which led to, or at least hastened, dissolution of the Imperial Diet.

Enraged because his sweetheart had jilted him, so the explanation goes, a farmer named Da Ruse gave vent to his wrath by piling logs and rocks on the railroad track, having no idea of the political consequences of his act.

Da Ruse is being held for trial in a Nagoya local court.

A stormy session of the Diet terminated January 31, in a riot accompanied by fist fights among members and the hurrying of water coolers.

The dieters followed President Kiyomasa's refusal to reply to the opposition's demands that he explain on oath to wreck a train of which, three opposition leaders, were traveling.

BOSTON BIJOU THEATRE

The birthday of laughter and light

ON Washington's Birthday, 1886, an expectant audience sat in the little Bijou Theatre waiting for the curtain to rise on Lydia Thompson and Her British Blondes in the extravaganza "Oxygen." It had been announced that "the electric light attachment has been put in order and will be turned on for the first time...."

The "electric light attachment" was "turned on", a little Edison dynamo over in Haymarket Place was ready, and the applause that followed paid tribute to the first customer of Edison Light.

A few months later a young chap named B. F. Keith bought the Bijou—his first theatrical venture. From the little Edison-lighted Bijou, the genius of Keith spread until he owned the great Keith Circuit, the world's most impressive theatrical enterprise.

Twice a day, since 1886, laughter and happiness have swept through Keith Theatres throughout the country. And every day since 1886 Edison Service has brought new light and leisure and convenience into the life of its community.

There was one Keith Theatre in 1886, the first Edison customer. There are 60 Keith houses today, and 190,000 customers of Edison Light of Boston.

Laughter and light, fast friends in those early years, have grown together to a breadth of service which is beyond the range of the human eye.

They are still growing.

HAPGOOD ASKS PROTECTION FROM SERUMS

Pleads for Law to Compel Legislature to Cure-All for Ills

Washington, Feb. 21.—(C.N.S.)—Declaring it is the duty of the government to safeguard the health of its men, women and children, as to those a mantle of health protection over the people, and over Norman Hapgood, editor of Health International Magazine today asked Congress to regulate the sale of dangerous serums, vaccines and toxins.

Mr. Hapgood declared the public health was endangered by the poison now distributed in the name of medicine. "The public has a right to know what is being, he said. If it is necessary to brand poisons, how much more important it is, he said, that they should know the contents of the serums, vaccines and toxins they take into their bodies when they are ill and their resistance to disease is weak."

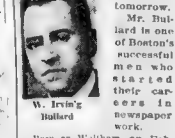

Mr. Hapgood said the American Medical Association heartily supported the demand he made for a law that will compel the manufacturers and distributors to designate plainly on the packages the composition of the serums they sell. He quoted the association as saying that serums are being distributed as cures for influenza, children's diseases, appendicitis, cholera, diphtheria and other ailments, not one of which can be cured by any such remedy. He spoke before a subcommittee of Congress.

PLAN FOR BONUS BY USING BRITISH DEBT

Washington, Feb. 21.—A new plan for financing the soldiers' bonus through use of the British debt settlement was proposed today by the Southern Commercial Congress.

VANDERLIP WILL FIGHT, COST NO BAR

Ready to Spend $600,000, the Banker Says, if the Truth Can Be Brought Out

New York, Feb. 21.—Frank A. Vanderlip, retired banker, in a reply today to the $600,000 suit against him by the owners of the Marion Star, declared he would fight the suit and expressed the hope it would be the forerunner of "court proceedings" that would make public some of the news that the great newspapers did not see fit to print.

"I am prepared to spend as much as has been asked for in three court proceedings in an effort to make public this news," the statement said. "There is nothing this country needs as much at the moment as some court proceedings initiated by grand jurors and pressed by incorruptible prosecuting attorneys."

"Twenty-two months ago the Star called for the facts in the Teapot Dome leases. That resolution was so framed that the red flag of suspicion was run up. For weeks no answer at all was received and mine was pressed for and thereafter until quite recently."

"Now here there have, so far as I am aware, any court proceedings, initiated as a result of the criminal mismanagement of the Veterans Bureau."

"There have been no proceedings even a thorough investigation of the alleged property administration. 'Conspires today in spending its time solemnly and partially devoted to the income tax measure. It is the discussing the size of a faucet you would put in a barrel leaking between half the stars."

"Corruption has attacked the government. It is a patriotic citizen and I propose to offer the same service in fighting this danger that a young man should offer in fighting a military invasion."

Would Anybody Miss You—

If So, How Much and How Long?
An Interesting Question
Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

They say that sleepless men can overcome insomnia by counting imaginary sheep jumping over a fence.

Other sleepless men might go to sleep trying to count up how many people would miss them if they should suddenly disappear.

Did you ever ask yourself the question at the top of this column?

You have heard about the very rich man who carried heavy life insurance without apparent necessity. He said he wanted to be sure that SOMEBODY would be sorry when he died—if only the insurance companies.

You can make up your mind how much you amount to as a private individual, a worker, a citizen, if you can also make up your mind WHO would miss you, how many, how much and for how long.

You are working somewhere for a living and you probably think that you are not valued at your actual worth.

How much would you be missed if you left? How long would you be remembered? What difference would it make to the concern that employs you?

How much trouble would there be in getting another man as good or better?

You think that you have friends. Would THEY miss you? How much and how long?

How many years after your death will your name be mentioned? One year? That is a long time for the average.

We all take ourselves seriously. Nature kindly attends to that in order to keep us working hard—making us value our little lives and struggle to keep them going.

But out of tens of millions there are few whose going would make any difference, few that would be remembered or that ought to be remembered.

How much difference would it make if you went? And now can you spend the rest of your life so that when the time comes for you to get out and give your place to another your going may really be worth talking about, and your little soul worth remembering after you are gone?

Next to doing your duty every day, and asking yourself whether you have done it, there is only one really important question, and that is, "What do I amount to, and what difference will it make if I vanish?"

Mr. Tinkham's Stiff Dose

His Check for Propagandists

Congressman Tinkham of Massachusetts proposes a national law which shall compel foreign propagandists to reveal their identity when conducting propaganda in this country. He proposes also that every foreigner who intends to deliver lectures, write articles or gather material for articles on American politics and institutions should be required to file a detailed sworn statement as to his purposes and his pedigree.

This is rather a stiff "dose" in our great American democracy. However, this is what Mr. Tinkham says about it: "We have clearly come to such a pass in the United States that no one, no matter how much he regrets the apparent vexation incidental to another new paper to be filled out by foreign temporary visitors, can hesitate to require a declaration in a perfectly dignified but absolutely specific way, of the intentions of such visitors in the matter of putting forward their own views to our people. No person or country need take umbrage at a requirement that all alike place their cards face up on the table."

We do not know what Mr. Tinkham intends to accomplish by this proposed law, but we had not supposed that the evils of propaganda were to be found in lecturers or in any other personal activity of foreigners in this country. If a foreigner delivers a lecture, we all know that he is a foreigner, and we make such discount as we please from that fact.

The evils of propaganda in this country come from within, and they are chiefly British propaganda. But they are not Britishers who deal it out in this country. They are Americans who have financial connections with Great Britain, or who are greatly set up by British social condescension.

It would be well if we could know the source of all propaganda, whether it comes from abroad or from America. A man who utters an opinion that we consider disinterested, carries more weight than a man who utters an opinion for hire. We ought always to know his interest. The law permits us to inquire into the interest of a witness in a trial before a jury. It requires that the jury should know what his interest is in the testimony he is giving so that it may make proper discounts with respect to that testimony.

A Good Wheat Idea

Cheap Fertilizer Would Help
Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

It is suggested that President Coolidge may raise the duty on wheat—he has the authority—to protect American farmers in the Northwest. The people would approve any action to prevent discouragement of farmers who feed the nation.

A very important step, better perhaps than a higher tariff, would be to provide the farmers with good fertilizer at a fair price. To increase the crop per acre would help in world competition. Fertilizer would do that.

Many farms across the Canadian border raise two or three times as many bushels per acre as do farms in the northwest of the United States.

Those American statesmen who advocate using the navy to stop bootlegging will be gratified to learn that Norway hunts run-runners with torpedo boats.

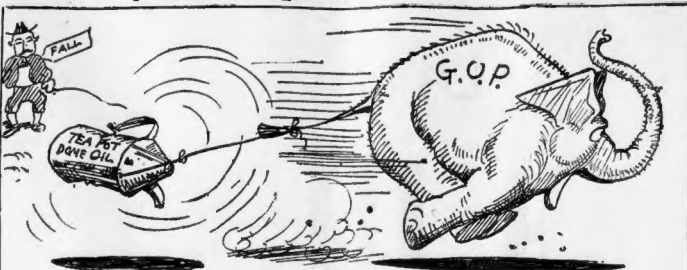

Of course, General Butler reduced crime in Philadelphia. Any town can enforce law if it wants to. A Republican form of government would be a peach, if it had a Paul Revere in every block.

The earthquake made Japan turn over a new leaf, or at least the edge of one. It is now thinking of abolishing licensed vice throughout the empire.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

SOME of the boys down at the office have been laughing about Ed. He was married last November. Nice little girl. The fellows pretended to be mighty sorry for her when she picked Ed. Told her she was headed straight for the poorhouse. And under their joking most of them wondered just how they were going to make out. Ed's a prince—but you know prince! Spent everything he earned with both hands, usually a day or two before he earned it. Well, he doesn't now! For now Ed's married. And he comes with his commuted book and lunch money in his jeans, and not a kopeck more.

"Serves him right!" you say, maybe. Maybe not. At any rate Ed isn't exactly flourishing under the treatment. Herds off alone by himself, never mixes in with the gang any more when they're matching for near-beers. No one knows where he eats his lunch. And he's stopped his occasional cigar because he can't hand one out to the boys. Yes, it's getting him. The old grin is gone. And the crowd aren't quite so cordial when they see him coming. Of course, they believe he ought to save now that he's married. Most of the fellows in the office are married, and they're saving, too. But, somehow, they feel a sudden contempt for a chap who lets himself be hog-tied and held up for every cent but lunch money. Ed is one of those chaps who have held their jobs by their personal charm. He's on the selling end of the game, and that half-fellow-well-manner man of his was his biggest asset. I wonder how this new play is going to affect his commissions. They say he's dropped off considerably in the last month.

If you're much with working men you'll know that Ed's problem is one of the biggest problems in the home today. From the wife's viewpoint it is no problem at all. She must keep the home going, provide for the family and save for a rainy day. Of course, she should get the pay check. Why should he have a pocket full of change to throw around? She doesn't have it. She thinks twice before she spends a nickel on herself. And there he was spending five dollars a week on smokes alone before they were married!

That's the wife's side of it, but how about the husband's side? A man's value as a worker is built on his social contacts almost as much as on his craftsmanship. The man who isn't "regular fellow" loses out in the game, and that loss inevitably reflects on his home. He loses out in the estimation of his fellow workers, and he loses out in his own self-respect.

We hear much of the humiliation of the woman who has to accept debts from her husband. But how about the humiliation of the man who accepts debts from his wife? Many a man's spirit has been broken by the terms of his social life at a cafe and lunch allowance which left no margin for treating the gas to a cigar or a near-beer. Does such economy really economize?

DR. FRANK CRANE ON THE JOURNEY BEYOND

By Dr. Frank Crane

THERE is no doubt that the most interesting subject in the world, that upon which all human beings most seriously ponder, is what is going to become of people when they die. Notwithstanding the many instances of a few that they believe a man's existence ceases at death, the vast majority of the citizens of the world have an inextinguishable conviction that they are going to live on somewhere, somehow.

The story is told of a missionary among the Alaskan Indians who was unable to arouse any interest among the natives by his message and who at last in desperation cried out, "I know where all your dead babies are!" Then they listened with attention.

Whether he actually knew or not he had certainly struck the chord of most universal interest.

A play entitled, "Outward Bound," has been produced this season. The scenes are staged on a ship whose passengers are outward bound from this life to a next.

In criticizing plays one can only give his own personal reactions. To me this is the most ingenious, the most fascinating and the cleverest play I have seen for some years. The subject is dangerous to the playwright or novelist. The temptation is well nigh irresistible to preach. I have read many books in which the fancy of the author depicts the circumstances of the life to come, books ranging all the way from Dante's Divine Comedy to the latest spiritualist twaddle. All of them fail to give the impression of reality.

This play, "Outward Bound," however, seems to me to be conceived with consummate genius. The people in it are real. One receives the impression that he is viewing actual human beings on their way from the shores of this life to that of the next. The characters act precisely as human beings would act. At no point do you have the feeling that the author has some propaganda to get over, some creed or scheme of life he wishes to defend. His conception is utterly original. I have never seen anything upon the stage or in a book that was like it. That, at least, is something.

It is related by Boswell that he once asked his friend, Dr. Johnson, what he thought of the next life. They were walking, at night, in a garden looking up at the stars. The old doctor replied that he had an idea that the next life would be a continuation of this life, but that it would be a new life, a new world, a new sun, a new moon, a new earth, a new heaven, a new hell, a new everything.

And in "Outward Bound" that is what we see: human life projected naturally and simply. No conventional conception of Heaven or Hell is offered because the whole matter is avoided. Human values remain. The underlying cosmic laws which operate upon individuals are shown in their normal working order.

It is far and away the most daring and original conception I have seen in recent years upon the stage and the play is carried out with craftsmanship that is of consummate excellence.

If I have no use to say that there ought to be more plays of this kind, for the trouble is that this is the product of a rare genius and that sort of thing is not common.
